Honour Two For Brotherhood

The first lifetime honorary membership in the National Conference of Christians and Jews was presented to Brig Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, president of the United Nations General Assembly, by Chief Justice John J. Bennett, of Special Sessions, who is chairman of the New York Region of the Conference.

Flanked by sixty-four Boy Scouts carrying the standards of United Nations members, General Romulo, who is the Philippines delegate to the U.N., heard himself called the "symbol of the unity between the East and the West." In accepting the membership, General Romulo told an audience of 2,500 that the primary task in fostering brotherhood was "to preserve the faith, for to lose it would be to invite chaos, disaster."

"Faithless men become brutes," he declared. "Life to them is sheer biology. There is no more morality, no more ethics. The family loses its central position in society. Law and order becomes a sham."

Herman W. Steinkraus, of Bridgeport, Conn., president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, received the "award for distinguished civic service" of the National Conference of Christians and Jews at a dinner in his city to observe Brotherhood Week.

Mr. Steinkraus, long active in the promotion of racial and religious harmony, received the award plaque from Probate Judge Russell Z. Johnston, chairman of the Hartford Chapter of the Conference. More than 400 Connecticut business, industrial and church leaders attended the dinner.

The principal speakers were Gene Tunney, former heavyweight boxing champion and chairman of the Community Relations Division of the National Brotherhood Week Committee; Dr. Bushnell W. Sloan, of Hartford, one of the founders of the Conference; and former Hartford Mayor Edward N. Allen, chairman of the dinner and former chairman of Connecticut's Interracial Commission.

Mr. Steinkraus is also president of Norwalk Copper and Brass, Ltd., and a director of the Bridgeport Hospital, the First National Bank of Bridgeport and the Carrier Corporation. He has long been active in Bridgeport civic and Connecticut State affairs and recently took the lead in organizing a symphony orchestra for his city.

WJC Calls On Austria To Curb Nazi Press

A letter from the world Jewish Congress demanding that Austria outlaw Nazi publications now freely circulating throughout that country, and protesting the appointment of a notorious Nazi supporter as a lecturer at the University of Vienna, has been transmitted to the Austrian government through its Minister in Washington, it was announced by Dr. Robert S. Marcus, WJC political director.

The letter hailed the decision of Heinz Kindermann, whose books in support of Nazi racist doctrines were banned after the liberation. "Austrian authorities," said Dr. Marcus, "not only have lifted the ban on his Nazi books, but have

WILL NOT RETURN PROPERTY OF GERMANS

Israel advised the United Nations at Geneva that the world not return religious property of German origin to the original owners despite her intention to restore all other religious property now under Israel's custodianship.

In reply to a suggestion from the United States that all religious property in Jerusalem be returned to the owners as of Sept. 1, 1939, Aubrey Eban, Israel's spokesman, said that such action with respect to German property would be abhorrent to world opinion and contrary to the United Nations practice, according to which [illegible] Ho also cited the United States' own law that prohibits the return of enemy property taken over during the war by the United States Government.

There is a substant : quantity of Lutheran pro rty in Jerusalem, much of w..ch, according to Palestine experts in Geneva, was actually or nominally owned by German nationals or German church groups.

U.S. Official Urges Voluntary Aid To Israel

Voluntary help from America to Israel must continue, Oscar R. Ewing, Federal Security Administrator, who returned from Israel a month ago, told 2,000 members of Hadassah, in New York, at the Astor Hotel.

Speaking at the three-day mid winter conference, Mr. Ewing said that he did "not believe it will be possible for Israel to achieve success unless there is continued help from its friends abroad, principally in America."

Mr. Ewing observed that "every citizen of the United States ought to be proud of the voluntary assistance rendered by you and by many other American organizations toward the upbuilding of Israel," but said that the work is "only half done."

He characterized as "silly" the criticisms that Americans who help Israel cannot be good Americans because of dual loyalty. "It is part of the American nature to help other people," he said, "and it is part of the American tradition for us to hold strong sentimental attachments to others abroad."

Commenting on his "especially warm feeling" for Ireland and Scotland because of his Scotch-Irish ancestry, Mr. Ewing said he did not "see that this is any different from the feeling that many American Jews have for Israel."

Calling Israel a stronghold of democracy, Mr. Ewing said that "if we reinforce the country's economy, if we bolster its faith in western democratic ideas, we are not only helping the people of Israel but we are also acting in the highest interests of the people of America."

In telling of his visit to Israel Mr. Ewing mentioned particularly the work of the Hadassah Medical School and [illegible] have been [illegible] $18,300 to support two cancer research projects there.

Mr. Ewing reported that the number of physicians in Israel in proportion to the population, is "extremely high," and that "even the remotest settlements have access to medical care." By contrast,

Reports Growth Of Brandeis U.

Dr. Abram Leon Sachar, president of Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass., said that in the last three weeks the university has received "enough family gifts to insure scholarships and employment for one-fourth of the student body."

Speaking before 700 members of the Jewish Teachers Association at their twenty-first annual luncheon at the Commodore, in New York, Dr. Sachar said that a report of the progress of Brandeis in recent weeks would include three newly acquired chairs—in biology, chemistry and political science—fully equipped chemistry and biological laboratories and endowments for exchange fellowships with the Hebrew University in Israel.

He also said the university is breaking ground on March 1 for its new dormitories. The new buildings, he said, will give the school a 90 per cent resident student body.

The problem facing the educator today, Dr. Sachar told the teachers, "is to create an affirmative climate" for young people. "The overdrive pressures of contemporary life, the constant discussion of the imminence of war, of depression, has made young people feel that they have no control of their destiny, that there is an inevitability of doom," he said.

He declared this feeling at times puts them on the "mourner's bench" and makes them feel sorry for themselves for "being born in a time that is out of joint."

"The educator must do more than train facile skills and talents," he said. "Without being Pollyanna, he must create a climate of solvability to combat the mood of inevitability." Dr. Sachar urged the teachers to convince their students that the presence of problems is not proof that the world is lost but that problems multiply when responsibilities increase.

The teacher "must make it clear that the ideal of security and peace of mind and complete, guaranteed security is an ideal both unattainable and unworthy," he said. "He must train young people to aim for the best, but to avoid disillusionment simply because the best does not come quickly."

LEADERS WARN ZIONISM REQUIRES ENCOURAGMENT TO YOUNG PIONEERS FROM HERE AS WELL AS FUNDS

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, Baruch Zuckerman, Zvi Luria and Dr. Israel Goldstein, of the American Section of the Jewish Agency Executive; Eliahu Elath, Israel Ambassador to the United States, and Arthur Lourie, Israel Consul General, who spoke at the three-day convention of Hachalutz Organization, held in New York, were of the unanimous opinion that the primary and urgent task of Zionism in America to-day was the development of the pioneer movement. They warned that without pioneering, Zionism in America would become meaningless.

Dr. Goldmann declared that "American Jews will never, I hope, be driven to Israel by the bloody anti-Semitism which wrecked European Jewry. Nevertheless, an increasing number of our Jewish youth, driven not by intolerance but by a desire to live full Jewish lives and to help build a new civilization, must be encouraged and trained to settle in Israel. He urged American Zionists to unite in fulfilling this task which he said, is the long run would represent America's major contribution to Israel's future.

Ambassador Elath urged American Zionists to, "see to it that the army of builders of the new state of Israel should include in its ranks pioneers from this country."

Maurice Samuel, the noted author and lecturer, guest speaker of the closing session, pointed out that while the Chalutz movement needed the active support of American Zionists, Zionism in America was in even more urgent need of a strong Chalutz movement to revitalize its entire purpose and program. The [illegible] delegates [illegible] of organized Hachalutz [illegible] come from all parts of the United States and Canada and from the eight training farms of Hachalutz.

The convention heard a report by Yehuda Messinger, executive secretary of Hachalutz, dealing with the development of new projects. The professional department, he reported, has been concerned with surveying the need in Israel for highly trained professional personnel and has already in the short period of its existence been able to fill numerous responsible positions in agronomy, chemistry, medicine, civil service, technology and other fields with pioneer volunteers. Another new project is the Bahar Ha Gvoh which is responsible for aiding American farmers and their families to settle in Israel on individual farmsteads.

Zvi Luria and Baruch Zuckerman, Jewish Agency Executive members, at a joint press conference, assailed Zionism in America for its inadequate support of American youth planning to pioneer in Israel. Mr. Zuckerman warned that unless the organized Zionist bodies gave greater support to the pioneer movement, that Zionism in America would be faced with the danger of collapse.

Mr. Lurie hailed the vital role played by American pioneers in Israel and the painstaking efforts of the Hachalutz Organization to properly train and prepare those young Americans for their tasks in Israel. Reviewing the significant contributions of Americans in Israel, Mr. Lurie said that the American Jewish community had fallen far short of its moral obligations to provide manpower for Israel's reconstruction.

The following is an excerpt from the press conference statement of Mr Lurie:

1) First of all, let me give you a group of figures! There is about one million youth in the Jewish Community of North America in what we call the chalutz age. Among them, no more than 80,000 are organized in any of the various Zionist youth organizations. Of these, from 12,000 to 15,000 belong to Zionist pioneer organizations of different shadings. But among them, no more than 2,000 are active chalutzim (pioneers) and candidates for hachshara (training) and for Aliyah (immigration) to Israel in the near future.

2) A second group of figures: From May 15, 1948, until January 1, 1950, i.e., from the day of the establishment of the Jewish State until this year, about 800 settlers from the United States went to Israel. Of this number, about 500 are chalutzim (pioneers). During this same period about 15,000 tourists came to Israel from the United States and left again. For every 700 olim (settlers) that came to Israel during the last one and one-half years, there was only one chalutz (settler) from America.

It is needless to state that this is a very small and insignificant contribution of American Jewry. In 1950, about 600 chalutzim (pioneers) from America will go to Israel, which means an increase of 50 per cent. But even so, the contribution from America is still very small. There are two reasons for this: (a) Jewish and Zionist neglect; (b) Internal obstacles in the American Jewish community.

3) The reason for so small an aliyah (immigration) and such a small chalutz movement is not that the Jewish community in America is so well situated.

4) Even if we should accept the thought that for Jews in America there is no social or economic need for pioneer emigration and emigration in general on a larger scale, (and this is not my opinion) this still does not justify the very small contribution of America towards Israel. Jews always immigrated to Israel and at all ages, under all circumstances. Chalutzim foresaw the historic process. One does not have to be hysterical: it is enough to be Jewish and realistic and to make a not too deep analysis of our history, in order to know that there are fundamental reasons for a Jewish immigration to Israel, and particularly for a large chalutzim immigration.

5) Let us be honest, our assistance towards the chalutzim, hachshara, and emigration is completely out of proportion. The budget of the Jewish Agency for this year for hachshara throughout the whole world is only IL.185,000 brought about by our financial diffi-

[illegible] this is that we still have 65,000 people in the camps in Israel and that we expect a large-scale general immigration to Israel in 1950. A small part of this budget will be allocated to the hachshara institutions in America. Truthfully speaking, this figure is out of proportion compared to the budget now expended by Zionist parties for their work. These parties alone are spending many times more than the whole world budget for hachshara.

And in America we must establish hachshara farms of a higher calibre than we did it. Eastern Europe before the war. Non-Zionist youth in this country is conditioned to a more comfortable life. If you visit the Y.M.H.A. and then take a subway ride and you arrive in the slum areas of Brooklyn where the pioneer youth movements have their centres in the cellars, you will not ask any more why the chalutz movement in America is not able to attract young-sters to their ranks.

We do not need hachshara in order to make people live under poor conditions. We need hachshara which should be on the same level at least as our colonization settlements in Israel, and which should give the young people the best of Zionism and education.

6) There are also political difficulties. There is always the scarecrow of dual loyalty. Only people that suffer from schizophrenia can use this as an excuse. The Irish people in America did not get scared when the Irish consul appealed to them to return to their homeland. Only people with a weak national consciousness and insecurity in this country develop the inferiority complex of double loyalty.

7) The achievements of the American Chalutz Movement in Israel are indeed significant. In more than twenty-two settlements in the land there are American chalutzim. You will find them on the crossroads of Lebanon; in the veteran settlements of Marchavia and Cherush Hachi; in the religious settlements of Kfar Darom, Yavneh and Ein Hanatziv. What only 2,000 chalutzim managed to accomplish in these settlements, tens of thousands can also do by following their example. The [illegible] Hachalutz movement in America [illegible] to be [illegible] its different countries, which accordingly must receive upon their own methods. But the goal is the same: To prepare Jewish youth to identify themselves with Israel, to go there and to live there at least for a number of years or permanently to become members of the world's newest nation.

"Israel today has a million Jews. Yet it is doubtful whether a nation of one million souls, no matter how hardy, can permanently maintain their political independence as an oasis among inimical Arab states. At the moment, there are more Jews in the world anxious to get Rabbi Irving Miller, president of the American Jewish Congress, addressing its national Administrative Committee at Freedom House, West Fortieth Street, in New York, [illegible] be safe-guarded by the mechanical reiteration of our opposition to alien 'isms'." He called for "immediate and practical expansion of our own democratic frontiers."

Rabbi Miller assailed what he termed "the negativism in current American thinking and policy." As examples of "democracy-destroying negativism", he cited opposition to President Truman's civil rights program and to American ratification of the Genocide Convention, strife over measures for displaced persons, the Republican party's statement of policy and the anti-Communist conference sponsored by the American Legion.

"Rather than spending our energies on 'anti-crusades'," he said, "we should be pooling our resources and strengths for a positive campaign to ensure better housing and better education facilities for the people of America and for the ending of all forms of racist discrimination and segregation in our midst."

The annual Freedom Award of Freedom Lodge of Bnai Brith was presented in New York to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt at a meeting in the auditorium of the Joan of Arc Junior High School, 154 West Ninety-third Street. Harry C. Waterston, chairman of the Freedom Award Committee of Bnai Brith, presented the award to Mrs. Roosevelt in recognition of her "tireless and outstanding work for a multitude of humanitarian causes." The award consisted of a bronze plaque and a cheque for $1,000. Mrs. Roosevelt turned the cheque over to the United Jewish Appeal in memory of her friend, Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr. Last year's Freedom Award was presented to Mayor O'Dwyer.

one cup sugar
two teaspoons baking powder
one-quarter teaspoon salt
one teaspoon vanilla
one-half cup oil
about two cups flour

Cream together eggs and sugar; add oil and vanilla gradually, mixing thoroughly. Then add the flour, baking powder, and salt, which have been sifted together, adding a little additional flour, if necessary, in order to have the right consistency for rolling out. Place a little flour on the board and roll out the dough until it is less than one-quarter of an inch thick.

Filling

one-half cup nuts
one-half pound prunes, cooked and pitted
one pound dates
grated rind and juice of one lemon
one-half pound raisins

Chop above ingredients in a wooden bowl until cut into small pieces. Using a medium-sized glass, cut out round pieces of dough. Place one teaspoonful of the filling in the centre of each piece and fold over to make a triangle. Place in a buttered pan and bake in a hot oven of 375 to 400 degrees for twenty or thirty minutes, or until a light brown colour.

Rabbis Warn On Fresh Rise Of Nazism

The New York Board of Rabbis at its annual meeting endorsed the civil rights program of President Truman, commended those seeking to maintain the separation of church and state, and recommended constant vigilance by the American Government against the rise of Nazism.

A resolution on the hydrogen bomb was sent back to committee for further study and consideration. Part of the resolution, it was indicated, would recommend the outlawing of every weapon of mass slaughter of civilians, reports the New York Times.

The sixty-ninth annual meeting was held at the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue, Central Park West and Seventieth Street. The board adopted four resolutions: In recommending constant vigilance against the rise of Nazism in post-war Germany, the board declared, "We add our voice to the warnings now being directed to German leaders against the revival of anti-Semitism and anti-democratic forces in Germany."

Calling for the speedy enactment of the President's civil rights program, the rabbis said they heartily endorsed "the Fair Employment Practices Commission as a national instrument for providing equal opportunities for all members of the American community, without regard to race, religion or any other factor except fitness for the position involved."

Urging a maximum program of religious training that must be fostered outside of public school buildings and outside of public school hours, the board asserted: "We deplore any effort, direct or indirect, to link our public school system with religious education."

In the fourth resolution the rabbis pointed out that the present large immigration of Jews into Israel places an inescapable responsibility upon every American Jew to give generous financial assistance toward providing for housing, care, education and employment.

"We believe," they said, "the United Jewish Appeal should have priority among the philanthropic campaigns of American Jewry."

Prof. Selig Brodetsky, president of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem, spoke on "The Spiritual Aspects of Life in Israel." The university, he said, was devoted to research and teaching and was not involved in politics or religion.

Cereals are primarily energy foods but they also contain in various amounts most of the basic nutrients. Whole grain cereals—those from which nothing is removed in processing—are higher in mineral and vitamin content than refined cereals. Some ready-to-serve cereals are in the whole grain class. Look for the "whole grain" label.

Governor-General Speaks At Dedication Of The Jewish Community Services Building In Montreal

Viscount Alexander, Governor-General of Canada, spoke at the dedication ceremony of the Jewish Community Services Building, 493 Sherbrooke Street West, and unveiled a bust of Baron de Hirsch and a replica of a bronze plaque to the memory of the Baron and Baroness de Hirsch, benefactors of the early Jewish community of Montreal. The actual plaque and bust are in the lobby of the new building, while the ceremony took place in the auditorium. Viscount Alexander was introduced by Samuel Bronfman, president of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, and president of the Canadian Jewish Congress.

Hon. Brooke Claxton, Minister of National Defence; and Hon. J. Hormidas Delisle, Quebec Minister Without Portfolio, spoke of the growth of the Jewish Community and praised its qualities and growth. Councillor J. O. Asselin, chairman of the Executive Committee of the City of Montreal, represented Mayor Camillien Houde.

Viscount Alexander praised highly the fighting qualities and devotion of the Jewish Brigade from Palestine which fought under his command in the North African campaign of the Second World War. His Excellency said that he had no better soldiers under his command during the North African campaign than the members of the Jewish Brigade and Jewish members of other units.

"Apart from my position as Governor-General of Canada, I would like to pay my tribute to those members of the Jewish faith who fought under my command during the recent war," he said.

At a social gathering after the plaque unveiling, His Excellency was given a special volume containing the Torah or five books of Moses.

Monroe Abbey, president of the Baron de Hirsch Institute, traced its history from its opening in 1891 as a free school and sheltering home for immigrants and orphans through its steady growth and the eventual formation of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies. "And now today under one roof, in these modern quarters the names of the Baron and Baroness de Hirsch are again enshrined in reverence for their generosity and compassion, and we find housed the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies, Baron de Hirsch Institute, Jewish Child Welfare Bureau, Jewish Vocational Service, the Combined Jewish Appeal, the Canadian Jewish Congress, the Jewish Colonial Association, the Jewish Community Camps, the National Council of Jewish Women, the National Council of Y.M.-Y.W.H.A.'s and the United Jewish Relief Agencies."

Jack A. Klein, chairman of the executive committee of the Federation, welcomed Mr. Claxton; and William Gittes, chairman of the executive committee of the Baron de Hirsch Institute, welcomed Mr. Delisle.

After the unveiling, some documents relating to the old Baron de Hirsch Institute on Bleury street and the new building were presented to Monroe Abbey, who was also chairman of the ceremony, by Michael Hirsch, the distinguished looking white-haired honorary president of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies and one of the oldest active members of the Jewish community.

In an unscheduled presentation, Mr. Hirsch offered to Mr. Abbey, through His Excellency, an old, strongbox from which alms had been distributed by his father and others in one dollar and two dollar bills to the Jewish needy in Montreal before the turn of the century. Mr. Hirsch also presented a gold key to the new building to Mr. Abbey.

A replica of a "silver trowel with an ebony handle" used at the inauguration 48 years ago of the Baron de Hirsch Institute was presented to Max Pascal, chairman of the building committee, by Samuel Hershorn, past president of the Jewish Child Welfare Bureau.

The ceremonies included presentation of documents by Max Finestone to Abraham Nissenson, treasurer of the Baron de Hirsch Institute.

A guard of honor composed of six Boy Scouts from the Neighborhood House Troop and three Girl Guides from 41st company greeted the Governor-General, who was accompanied by Air Vice-Marshal F. S. McGill, C.B., and Major-Gen. A. E. Walford, C.B., honorary aides de camp.

Rabbi Dr. Chaim N. Denburg, president of the Board of Jewish Ministers of Greater Montreal, and Rabbi Shees Herschorn, acting chairman of the Montreal Council of Orthodox Rabbis, offered prayers. Mrs. George Strean played the piano for anthems. The guests were served refreshments and inspected the building which is an imposing structure of modern design.

PURIM

The month of Adar is significant in the Jewish calendar because of the festival of Purim, on the 14th day of this month, corresponding this year to third day of March. Purim commemorates the deliverance of the Jews from the perpetrations of Haman through Mordecai and Esther.

The word Purim means "lots". Lots were cast by Haman to determine the day of the extermination of the Jews. The Book of Esther relates the interesting story of Purim. These events took place in Persia, during the reign of King Ahasuerus (485-464 B.C.E.) The Megillah (Scroll of Esther) relates the sinister plot of the Prime Minister, Haman, the arch anti-Semite, who planned to exterminate the Jewish people because Mordecai, a pious and learned Jew, refused to bow down and pay him homage. It reveals how Esther, the orphan niece of Mordecai, became the Queen of Persia, and how timely intervention on behalf of her people saved the Jews from annihilation. Esther's Hebrew name was Hadassah.

The Fast of Esther on the day before Purim is observed because Esther and the Jews of Persia spent three days in fasting and prayer when the evil perpetrations of Haman threatened them with destruction. This is observed as strictly as Yom Kippur by Persian Jews. Even the sick fast on that day. They write the name of Haman on their shoes so as to "stamp out" this name while walking.

The Megillah of Esther is read in the synagogue on the eve of Purim and on the following morning, to commemorate the victory of the Jews over their enemies. At every mention of Haman's name, the children twirl their "greggers" and noisemakers to drown out the name of our wicked enemy.

Purim is set aside as a day of feasting and gladness, and the interchange of presents and also gifts to the poor, that they too may rejoice. Jews are enjoined to send at least two "portions" to one friend and two gifts to two poor people. The gifts should be sent on the day of Purim and should consist of foods or fruits which may be enjoyed on the festival without much additional preparation. He who exceeds in sending gifts to the poor is praiseworthy. As in the decree of Haman, no distinction was made between rich and poor, as all alike were doomed to destruction, it is proper that all should have equal cause to feel joyful, and therefore remembering the poor is an indispensable ingredient to the complete happiness of the Jewish community, says the Synagogue Guide.

given him the opportunity of poisoning the minds of the new generation." In specifying his charges on the permitted revival of the Nazi press, Dr. Marcus pointed out that Austria had recently lifted the ban on "Der Weg," a Nazi journal published in Buenos Aires, "which probably is the main organ of global neo-Nazism."

Dr. Marcus also noted that the World Jewish Congress exactly a year ago had protested without success to the Austrian Minister to the U.S., Dr. von Kleinwaechter, on the reappearance in Austria of "Die Neue Front" and "Der Alpenruf", two pan-Germanic, anti-Semitic publications. Recently, he added, "Der Alpenruf" was banned for a two-month period by the Allied Council. "If Austria is truly desirous of checking a resurgence of Nazism on its territory," Dr. Marcus commented, "the least it can do is outlaw these and other pro-Nazi publications."

NEW IMMIGRANTS

The last-named fear is unfounded. Apart from the collective farms and other co-operatives including the Histadruth Labour Federation, which controls distribution of farm products and construction, nearly all of the economy is privately-owned. But one day, after the DP camps have been liquidated and the ghettos of North Africa dissolved, the problem will not be one of finding funds, but of finding immigrants. This is an aspect of the Chalutziut movement which may not be urgent today, but will one day become so. "When this stage is reached, the pioneer youth movement will become not only in many ways the best, but also the major, source of immigration to Israel."

Commentaries

By Dr. Harry J. Stern, Rabbi

Rabbi, Priest, Minister, In An Historic Tour

Canada and the United States celebrated International Brotherhood Week and it was my privilege to have been associated with Rev. Michael J. Ahern, S. J., of Weston College, Massachusetts, and the Rev. Dr. Crossley Hunter, of Toronto, in a trio to tour communities in Ontario in the cause of better understanding. I believe it was the first time in Canadian history that a Catholic priest, a Jewish rabbi and a Protestant minister, have jointly appeared on public platforms and presented a united appeal in the cause of religious fellowship and better understanding. It was a refreshing experience in every way and, judging from letters received by those who heard the trio plead the cause of peace and brotherhood, it was one of the most successful ventures in advancing human relationships.

At Kingston, Ontario, our first undertaking had to do with a broadcast over Station K.C.V.I. We dealt with such questions as: How can the Brotherhood idea promote goodwill among men of different faiths and races? How can the Brotherhood idea be gotten across to children and teen-agers? What can the individual do to achieve the aims of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews? It was an interesting radio program and the questions placed before the trio by the announcer proved most stimulating and provocative. Multitudes heard this broadcast through the provinces of Ontario and that of Eastern Quebec.

In the late afternoon of Monday, February 20, the trio met in a panel discussion with students of Queen's University, held under the auspices of the Canterbury Club, the Newman Club, the Hillel Foundation and the Student Christian Movement. Judging from the questions asked by the students, there is a great hunger on the part of college men and women to do all in breaking down the walls that divide peoples, the walls of the mud of ignorance and superstition. Queen's University is unique in that no fraternities are permitted on its campus. The entire student body may be said to constitute an all-embracing fraternity. Indeed, the principal of this great university is a most distinguished Canadian whose spirit of liberalism without a doubt has had much to do in creating the atmosphere of open-mindedness which prevails in the halls and on the campus of the university in Kingston.

A mass meeting of Kingston citizens took place in historic Memorial Hall under the chairmanship of Principal Wallace. Greetings were brought by Mayor Clifford A. Curtis. It was a great gathering in every way, under a great chairman.

I was the first to speak on the program and did not hesitate to give emphasis to the fact that there are plenty of "Iron Curtains" in Canada, which must be penetrated, for these curtains mock democracy. Hence, I pointed out that while we rejoice in the appointment of a Jew as a Judge to a higher bench court, the over-emphasized publicity that a Jew was thus appointed for the first time, indicated that democracy thus far has been offended. For, indeed, in the democratic life we stress the import of the person per se, no matter what his race or creed might be. And, surely, long ago in democratic Canada, a Jew should have occupied any position in civic and government life as long as he was found worthy.

Here I must stress that we have had distinguished Jews, jurists, who could have served Canadian democracy splendidly had they been given the opportunity which a democratic government is supposed to safeguard for all its citizens. We were supported in our emphasis on the principle of democracy both by Rev. Father Ahern and Dr. Crossley Hunter who made passionate appeals for the support of the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, the aim of which is to establish amity and justice and brotherhood.

A meeting at Kingston which I alone addressed was held at Kingston Collegiate Institute. It was during chapel hour, early on Tuesday, February 21. I found it a thrill in every way to speak to these hundreds of young people in the teens. I believe it was for the first time that a Jewish rabbi ever spoke in the school. I did intimate to the large number of students that they should not be disappointed in seeing me, a rabbi, beardless, for when I go out to speak in particular to Christians, I usually remove my beard and leave it on the pulpit at Temple Emanu-El. The students were more than receptive to the message I ventured to bring to them, that brotherhood was most desperately needed now in the face of the hydrogen bomb and that the cause of peace presents the greatest challenge to the youth of Canada and the youth of the world.

A dinner meeting at Guelph, Ontario, was addressed by the trio. So courteous were train officials of the Candian National, that the train at Toronto, going to Guelph, was held for a half hour, awaiting the late arrival of Father Ahern and myself, and we did finally get to Guelph a quarter to nine in the evening, which was far beyond our scheduled arrival, supposedly for dinner. But while the good Father spoke to the patient waiting audience, I ate my dinner. I felt that Jesuits, for the most part, are better trained in fasting and hence Father Ahern could endure to be without food much longer that a mere rabbi.

My schedule called for my arrival in Toronto that same Tuesday evening and through a blinding snow-storm a taxi-man drove me there while Father Ahern remained at the Jesuit Novitiate at Guelph for an evening rest. I might here add that my good friends of the Novitiate did offer me a night's lodging which I more than appreciated, but I felt that I must be in Toronto for appointments in the morning and hence the drive through the snow storm.

At Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto, under the auspices of the Brotherhood, Father Ahern and myself joined by the Rev. Canon W. W. Judd, himself a Torontonian, addressed a dinner meeting. The Rev. Richard Jones, executive director of the Canadian Council for Christians and Jews, presided, and he made a jolly good chairman. Holy Blossom Temple was a most natural place for a rabbi, priest and minister to speak and plead in the cause of religious fellowship because this synagogue has for long had a dynamic program of inter-faith. We, of course, regretted very much that Rabbi Abraham L. Feinberg could not share and be present at this dinner gathering because of illness. Originally Rabbi Feinberg was to have presided.

All in all, it was a memorable experience for me to have been associated with my good friends, Rev. Michael Ahern, Dr. Crossley Hunter, and Canon Judd in this inter-faith venture. Surely, Jews and Christians must in these days more than ever partake in the work of inter-faith. Judaism, the mother religion, and Christianity, the daughter religion, their source is one, God; their hope is one, that of the world redemption and the progressive unfolding of the world spirit.

The trio dramatized the significance of International Brotherhood Week. We pray that the labours of priest, rabbi, and minister will prove helpful and fire the hearts of all whom they were privileged to address to toil and to labour in the cause of genuine brotherhood and in the cause of improved human relationships. We salute the Rev. Richard Jones, director, of the Canadian Council for Christians and Jews, under whose leadership this fine organization is splendidly growing in influence and achievements in our Canadian democracy.

New Immigrants In Israel Raise New Problems

BY RICHARD YAFFE, IN THE NEW STATESMAN AND NATION

In a co-operative village near the Lebanese border, I was speaking to a group of Jews from Yugoslavia, trying to learn how they were faring. A dapper little fellow with a pencil-line moustache edged into the circle and loudly proclaimed: "There is discrimination here. They have refused me a place in the moshav (collective village)."

"Why?" I wanted to know.

"Because I am an artist. And they do not want artists here," he replied.

"What is your art?" I asked.

"I am an acrobat," he said.

For all its comic quality, this episode illustrates one of the grim difficulties facing Israel—the problem of immigration and its corollary, integration. The millionth Jew has now entered the country; 20,000 more are coming every month; and the population by the end of 1951 will have topped two million. Ninety thousand are in reception camps. Nothing is asked of these people—whether they are well or sick, whether they have the skills Israel needs, or the education to learn skills, or any other of the questions an immigration officer asks an immigrant anywhere. Israel just takes them as long as they are Jews.

Of the 800,000 Jews who have entered Israel since May 15, 1948, nearly 70 per cent came from Eastern Europe and 23 per cent from Turkey, North Africa and the Yemen. About 23 per cent were over 40 years old, while 17 per cent were children under nine. Nearly 55 per cent of the new immigrants were unskilled, and 28 per cent were below the working age or unemployable.

These figures, moreover, do not take into consideration the state of the health of the new arrivals. Among the most recent of these, the 30,000 Jews from Yemen, at least 50 per cent, perhaps more, are in ill health, suffering from the diseases of malnutrition and the backwardness of the society they left behind, in addition to infections, such as malaria, picked up on the long trek.

Many Jews from the Arabian and North African countries had been living under the most primitive conditions. For example, few of the Yemenite Jews who arrived through Aden were literate, and none had ever seen a bed or a cake of soap before. Most had no skills whatsoever, and the rest had primitive trades of little use to Israel's economy.

The problem of integrating the Oriental and North African Jews into Israel's economic life is great. That presented by the Jews on the opposite pole of the social scale is, to some extent, even greater. The Yemenite Jew, for instance, takes to the hardest type of work and is content merely because he is in the Jewish State. The latest influx of European Jews, particularly those from Poland, is another story.

The early migrations from Poland, following the turn of the century and lasting until World War II, were largely idealistic, consisting of confirmed Zionists who trained for their future life in communal settlements set up for them in Poland and elsewhere. They expected every hardship that was to be encountered; and the results of their labours can be seen today. But with the coming of Hitler and the war there was a qualitative change in the character of the migration. More and more persons who had to come because there was no other place to go flocked into Palestine. The balance had swung from a purely idealistic movement to one of sheer necessity.

What is left now in Poland and Czechoslovakia is a class which would like to stay in Europe. These Jews are able to re-establish themselves in profitable businesses and would prefer to remain—if it were not for the fact that there is no longer any place in their homelands for their class. Thus, of the 30,000 who will leave Poland for Israel between now and the end of August when the Polish doors will be shut again, perhaps eighty per cent or more will be of the merchant class.

They are being welcomed to Israel, but their integration into the economy will prove even more difficult than that of the more primitive people from Yemen and North Africa. They desire to remain in the class with which they identify themselves; they are unfit for the heartbreaking toil of tilling the land or building roads; and the types of business they lost in Europe are already over-crowded in Israel.

Politically, the influx from both Eastern Europe and the Orient will effect profound changes in Israel. The early immigration was mainly Socialist in character. Today it is primarily Right-wing, the East European Jew consciously so, and the Oriental and North African Jew subconsciously so. With the East European Jew it is not only a matter of the class to which he belonged for so long; he feels a revulsion against any system which recalls that which dispossessed him back home. With the others, the issue is religion. Primitively orthodox, they fall naturally into the Religious Bloc of the extreme Right.

I believe, therefore, that it is safe to forecast that, in the next general election, both Mr. Ben-Gurion's Mapai, the United Labour Party coalition, and the Mapam, the more radical United Workers Party grouping, will lose strength, perhaps equally, to the parties of the Centre and Right. While Mr. Ben-Gurion is likely to retain his mandate, he will be facing two strong oppositions on both sides of his political fence. Since his personal inclinations are toward the West, he may feel himself freer to tie his country more closely to America. The Mapam, while not anti-American, presses for friendship and trade with the Soviet Union and the People's Democracies.

The question of relations with the United States is of vital importance to Israel. On the one hand, it cannot live without the bounty of America's Jews and, in fact, would probably have to halt immigration if the flow of dollars from America should stop. On the other hand, it cannot reach any level of self-sufficiency on American charity, but must look to Europe, particularly East Europe, and to the Arab countries for its trade and future stability.

So far, Mr. Ben-Gurion's Government has relied almost entirely on loans, investments and donations, chiefly from America. Loans are coming through and donations are still large, although there are increasing signs that American Jews are not digging as deeply into their pockets as they did in the past because, first, the cut in the U.S.A.'s excess profits taxes has also cut the amount of "free" charity available in the States; secondly, investment in Israel is the "long pull" rather than the quick turnover type; and, thirdly, U.S. investors and businessmen are a little alarmed at the agrarian Socialism of the collective farms and the reformist Socialism of the regime.

They know...

IT IS NOT MONEY ALONE

More than a million and a half people deal with the Bank of Montreal, and they know that it is not money alone they deal in when they come to us. It goes beyond that. These people have confidence in the Bank; they know that their money is safe with us, and that they will be fairly treated in their business dealings.

We try to keep constantly in mind that the Bank is not primarily an impressive row of figures or an imposing building. We think rather of the Bank as the local manager and his staff, on whom our customers can always call for friendly counsel and service. Our branch-banking system is founded upon this relationship.

A man's relationship with his bank manager is, and should be, a highly personal one. Yet in each of our 349 branches, behind this confidential relationship, there stand the resources and stability of a nation-wide, century-old institution. Thus the strength of the institution is linked with human understanding in the service of the individual.

I believe sincerely that this is the spirit guiding our relations with the public today. Without such a spirit, the Bank could not maintain or justify its place in the economy of this country, nor would we be able to give our best to Canada in the years of great promise which lie ahead.
